Commemorative Postmarks

18 June 1943

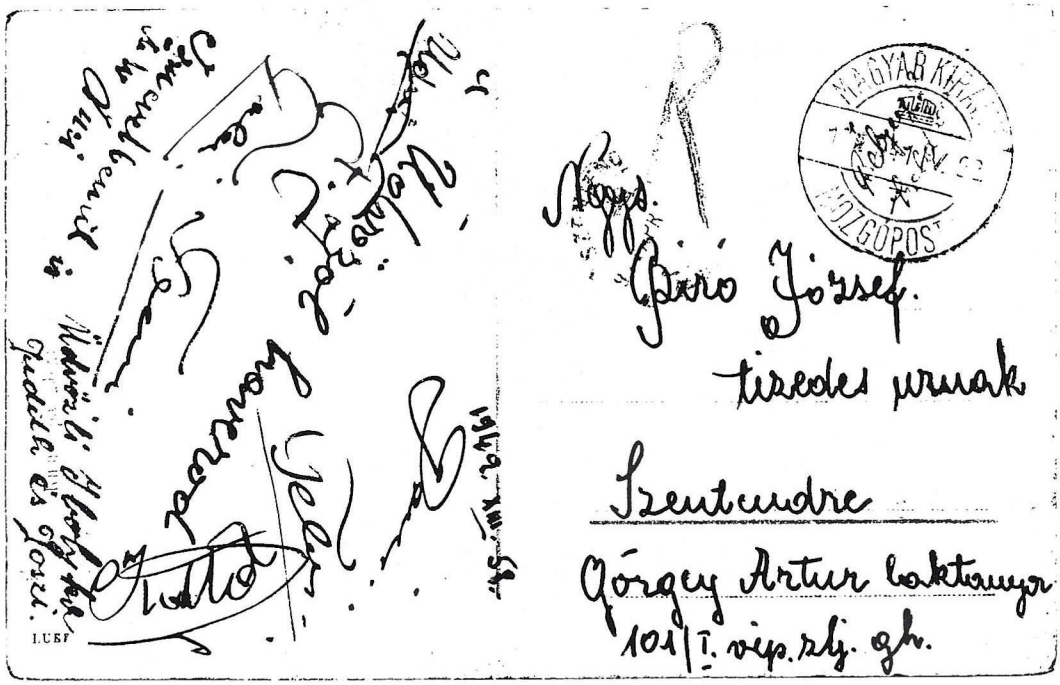

Several commemorative postmarks were issued to publicize various events, including a fair, the 300th anniversary of the Piaristic Order and the 75th birthday of Admiral Horthy, in the recovered territories. Mostly found on philatelically-prepared pieces rather than on items actually mailed, but one necessarily collects what is available.

31 July 1944

The liberated Bacska territory provided a good rail connection to the lower Danube, so railway postal service was instituted quickly. Postmarks inscribed "Mozgopost" were issued to the Postal Conductors on the trains. Example here used on a picture postcard of Szabadka and apparently accepted as military mail free of postage.

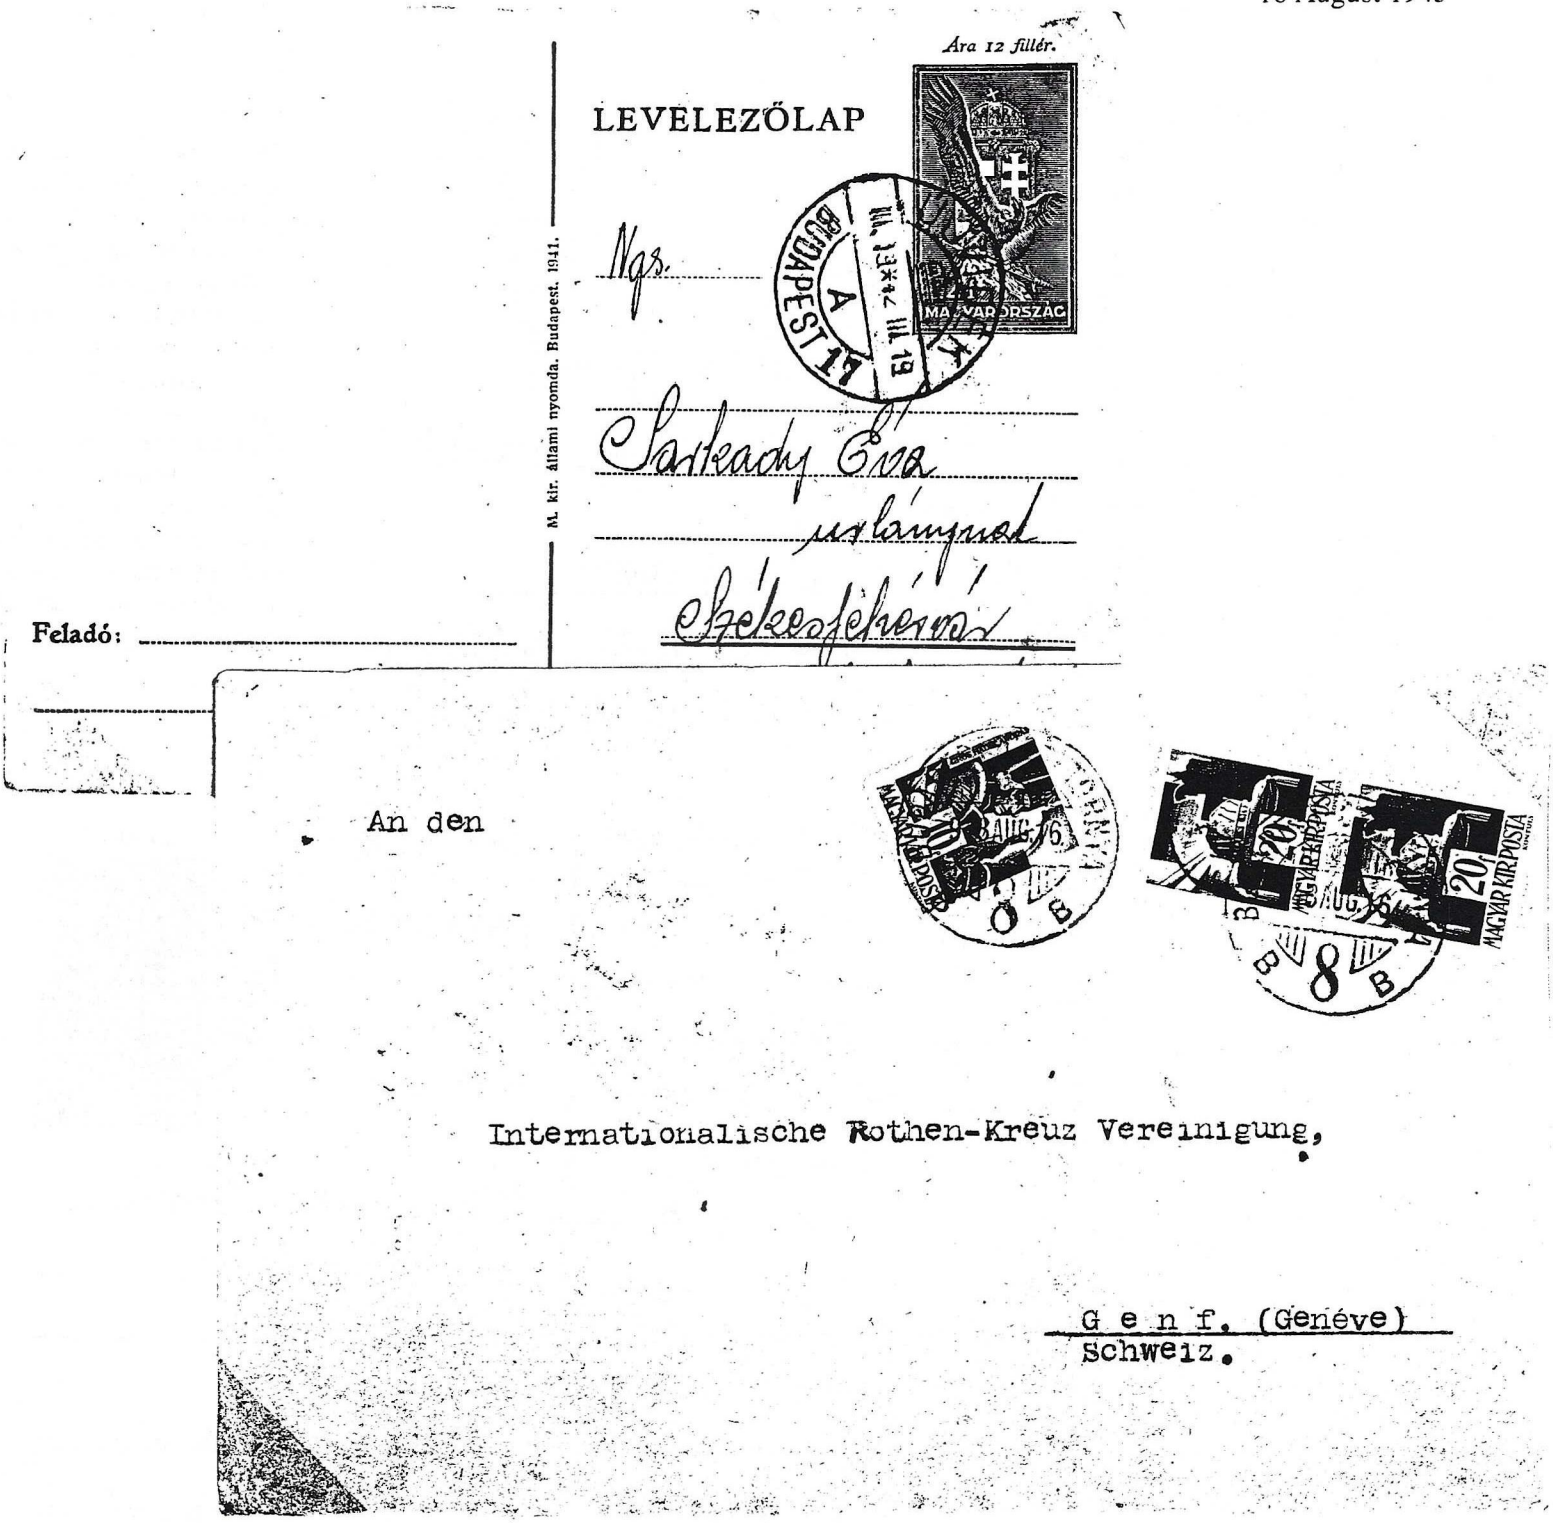

Later version of the Postal Conductor marking used on a postal card from Boldogasszonyfalva to Obecse, both of which are located in the Bacska territory.

Official mail from the liberated territories is seldom seen, perhaps because the files were purged of royalist material during the Communist regime.

Postage Due Mail

Zombor

M. Kir. Posta 195
22 May 1941

Mailed as a domestic postal card in Dakovo, Jugoslavia two days before the Axis invasion, this card was held up due to war, sent to Budapest for inspection and then forwarded to the addressee in Zombor. Double deficiency postage due was assessed upon arrival two weeks after mailing.

Mailed in May 1941 as a domestic postal card in Pelmonostor (Beli Manastir), the Jugoslav postage was invalid. Thus, 10 filler postage due was assessed as indicated by the blue manuscript marking.

Kula
11 July 1943

Mailed as a domestic letter in Croatia. However, by this time, Zombor was in a foreign country so it was underpaid by 10 filler. Thus, double deficiency postage due was assessed on arrival.

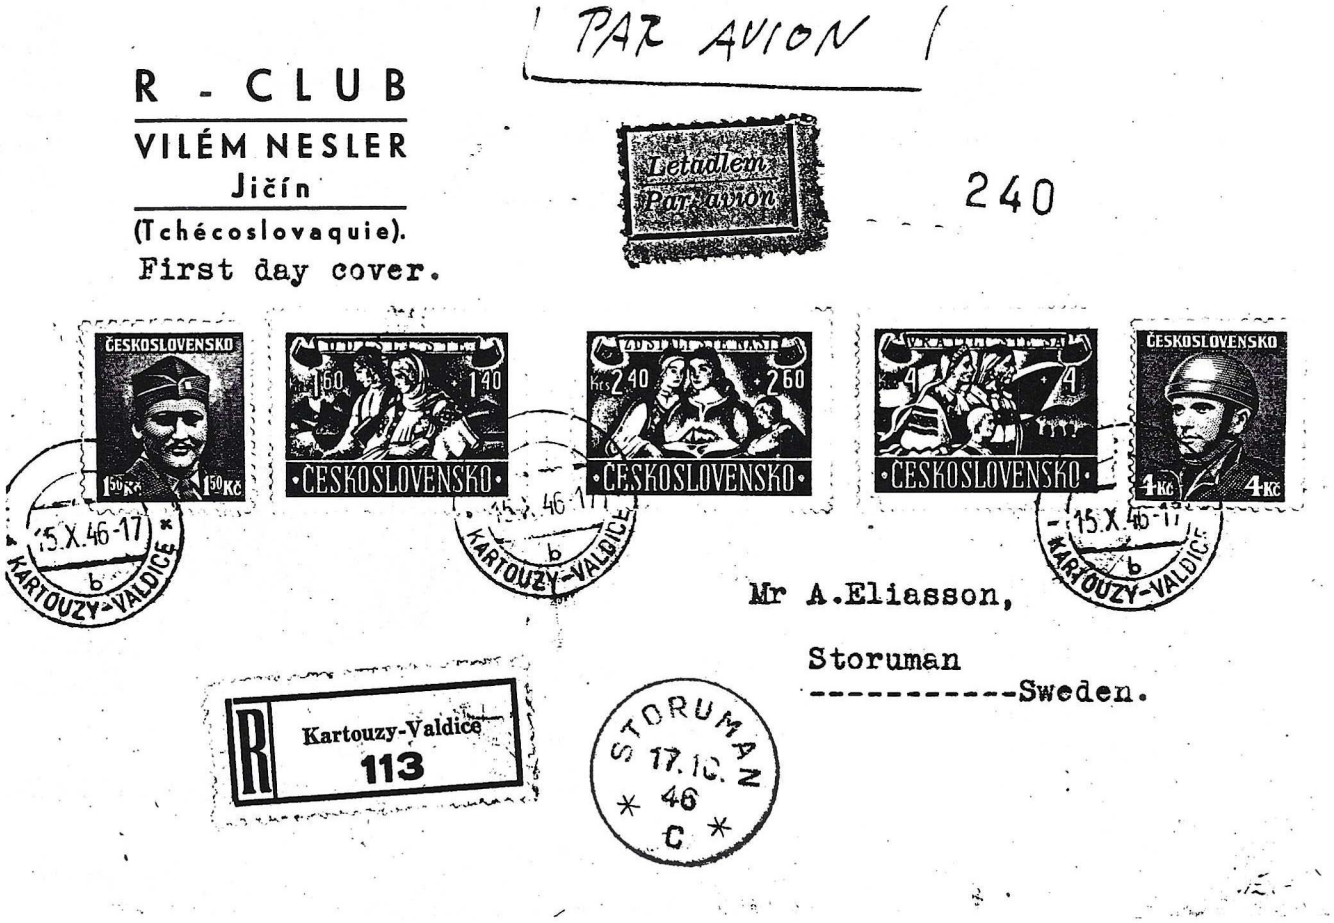

Mailed as a domestic postcard (movie theme) in Kula but without postage. The rate in 1943 was 18 filler, so double deficiency of 36 filler was charged when the card was delivered in Pacser (Pacir), which was also in the Bacska Province.

EPILOGUE

At the end of World War II in 1945, Hungary was forced to give up all of the territory that it had recovered in 1938-1941. Indeed, it was even required to give up to Czechoslovakia a few additional towns to the south of the Danube near Bratislava. Moreover, the Hungarian people were held as a subservient satellite of the Soviet Union for the ensuing 45 years until the eventual collapse of that empire. Thus, the era of Liberation came to an abrupt and painful end.

FIRST DAY COVER

In 1946, the Czechoslovak post office issued a set of three semi-postals to honor the recovery of the southern portion of Slovakia from the Hungarians. The design of the stamps was based on the theme of "You went away; you remained ours; and you returned to us."
